WORK IN SHELTER NO: 95,220,106

Hello sir this is very good work by DUSIB VOLUNTEER PROGRAMM because I learned so much things in this programme . I phased lots of problem like rat problem, space problem people family problem etc and I also understand how I solved it the main thing is first you talk to people and understand what they want and talk to us than you understand how to solve it .

Shelter no 106 is very danger for me 1st day I went this shelter I saw so many drinker person those don't know what they saying I asked those people how are you they said ooo kone hai to yaha kya kar raha hai I replied hello friends I am your helper friend than they replied get out and using abusing language but slowly slowly I talk that people they drink alchole but 4th day they drinker person talk politely and I understand 1st you talk and understand why they doing and also The occupied shelters are only for men and no separate space for women in those. The basic amenities provided in the shelters are very poor.

Shelter no 94,220 is very good for me I learned so many thing how they living who they phased our problem and I saw so many family they lived in and talk to us .They thanks to government because shelter provide .So many Homeless are not aware of those shelters but

I talk and give the way . Space problem like this

The state should immediately undertake the rapid mapping in all the cities and locate zones of homeless concentration. Shelters should be built only in such zones.

No separate shelters for women and children, and special categories of homeless such as mentally and physically challenged and others. Some pic with homeless people Homelessness can often lead to a vicious circle of suffering which gets exaggerated with the question of their identity / or rather the lack of it. This further makes them vulnerable to abuses of many kinds - physical, sexual, and substance abuse is a few of the apparent and visible forms of abuse. The fact that most homeless people are migrants makes it imperative to understand the trends, reasons and outcomes of their decision. The decision which is often based on economic instability, gets further aggravated by the insecurities of living in an "unknown terrorizing city" full of unfamiliar and hostile faces. However, the phenomenon of homelessness is not just about lack of housing or accommodation. It is not a purely housing based concept but has significant emotional, social and psychological dimensions as well. Thus, loss of family and community bonds might be central to homelessness. It is this feeling of being 'not wanted' that might go unattended even when the measures are taken to address the problem. Personal drug use, familial drug use, family conflict and in some cases family breakdown could also be contributing factors. Poverty is seen as the most influencing factor. Homelessness and poverty are inextricably linked. Poor people are frequently unable to pay for housing, food, child-care, health care, and education. Difficult choices must be made when limited resources cover only some of these necessities. Often it is housing, which absorbs a high proportion of income that must be dropped.

The police see drugs and begging as the two inseparable aspects of a homeless person's life. Very often, they are seen as people who do not want to work and are happy making their living out of begging. Shelters, certainly, are much more than places for night time sleeping. Therefore, serious efforts are required to design and develop these shelters in a manner that they not only fulfill the most basic requirements of an individual but also serve as the ground from where person could begin to plan his life beyond the hostile and unfriendly streets. It was with this objective of assessing the current status of the shelters being run in the city and to identify the areas for improvement and ways to do that, that this study of shelter assessment was carried out.

CONCLUSION

This programme is really very good and government take good step and my suggestion is this programme not stop continue run all time. Thankyou DUSIB give this chance for me.

All is well iiiiiiiiiiiiiiiisssssssssss this wok.
